

Civil Society under Authoritarianism

The China Model

JESSICA C. TEETS

Middlebury College

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

List of Figures	page viii
Preface and Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction: Civil Society in China: Better Governance under Authoritarianism	I
The Puzzle: Why Is Greenpeace in China?	I
The Argument: The Process of Policy Learning	6
The Global Associational Revolution	10
Changing State–Civil Society Relationships: Policy     Learning under Authoritarianism	14
Methodology and Findings	25
The Significance of This Research: Better Governance     under Authoritarianism	33
I Policy Learning in China: Constructing Consultative Authoritarianism	38
The Political Economy of Learning: Officials' Changing     Responsibilities	42
Learning through Observation: Rise of the Regulatory     State Model	48
Learning through Experience: Civil Society Development     in China	52
The Associational Revolution and Local Cadre Learning	60
Learning through Observation: The Color Revolutions     in the 2000s	67
Better Governance under Authoritarianism: The     Consultative Authoritarianism Model	69
	v

2	Let Many Civil Societies Bloom: Building Consultative Authoritarianism in Beijing and Yunnan	79
	Learning in Beijing: Building Consultative Authoritarianism	82
	Learning through Observation: Imitating the Regulatory State Model	85
	Learning through Experience: Social Services Innovation	88
	Learning through Observation: The Color Revolutions	93
	Development of Consultative Authoritarianism in Beijing	97
	Learning in Yunnan: Developing New Tools of State Control	100
	Learning through Experience: Treating the AIDS Epidemic	102
	Learning through Observation: the Eco-Ethnic Tourism Model	109
	Learning through Experience: Water Warriors Confront the Local State	113
	The Development of Consultative Authoritarianism in Yunnan	115
3	Converging on Consultative Authoritarianism: Civil Society Development in Jiangsu and Sichuan	119
	Learning in Jiangsu: Redesigning the Mechanisms of State Control	121
	Learning through Experience: The Amity Foundation	123
	Learning through Experience: Community-Based Organizations	125
	Building Consultative Authoritarianism: New Tools of Control	127
	Learning in Sichuan: Demands for Public Participation	128
	Learning through Experience: Collective Protests	131
	Learning through Experience: Poverty Alleviation Projects	133
	Learning through Experience: Wenchuan Earthquake Relief Efforts	137
	Building Consultative Authoritarianism: Collaborating with "Trusted" Groups	141
	Converging on a Consultative Authoritarianism Model	142
4	Civil Society Strategies in China: Creating Opportunities for Learning	145
	Menu of Civil Society Strategies	146
	The Failure of Corporatism in China: Creating Learning Opportunities for Local Officials	156

Environmental Civil Society in China: The Success of Collaborative Strategies	158
Implications for Civil Society Development and Regulatory Change in China	172
Conclusion: Illiberal Wave: The International Diffusion of Consultative Authoritarianism	176
Transnational Diffusion of Ideas: A New Authoritarian State–Civil Society Model	179
The Process of Diffusion: Authoritarian Learning across Borders	182
The Rise of “Sovereign Democracy” in Russia	192
Development of Autonomous Civil Society in Russia	195
An Illiberal Wave: The Implications of a Consultative Authoritarianism Model	207
Bibliography	213
Index	233